Gone Fishin

For years, the riverbank was where
Your soul felt most content
Your heart was most at peace when there
With a fishing rod half bent

But then, your spirit came to rest
Where angels choose to roam
And once equipped with ten pound test
You made yourself at home

The sky became the Rose River
The clouds became your shore
And because you were always a giver
You sat with friends galore

The tales you told about each catch
Its stature and its girth
Will live in memories unmatched
As days pass here on earth

We will always see you standing there
Catching trout at Hurdle creek
We will feel you with us everywhere
With a smile cheek to cheek

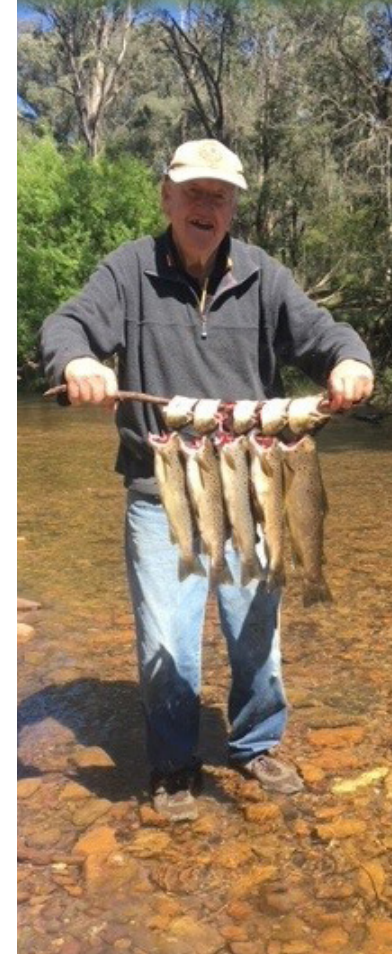

Until we meet again, one day
Upon The Buffalo River land
We'll picture you, no other way
Than with a catch in hand

IN LOVING MEMORY
